SUMMER NIGHTS

Katie Lee knows firsthand that Dior Beauty, Moët & Chandon and the Cinema Society go together like rama-lama-lama-ka-dingity-ding-dee-dong for a swingin' outdoor screening of Grease. PHOTOGRAPHS BY ERIC STRIFFLER

SUMMER IS BY FAR my favorite time of year to entertain. Over the years, I've had quite a few memorable barbecues and beachside dinners—even keg parties—but none have been as special as the recent outdoor screening, Grease Sing-A-Long, that I hosted with the Cinema Society, Moët & Chandon and Dior Beauty.

Guests were instructed to come in their best Rydell High-inspired gear. Some took the greaser route; others arrived as preps. (I was a bad-girl Sandra Dee, though I was lacking Olivia Newton-John's blond locks.) Grease was definitely the word on everyone's lips as we feasted on '50s-diner-themed dishes like my mini cheeseburgers and milk shakes, perfectly executed by Mary Giuliani Catering & Events. At first only a few timidly sang along, but by the end of the screening, we were all on our feet, singing, dancing and hand-jiving. Ahhh, those summer nights... H

1. Once the movie started, everyone settled in on the polka-dot blankets and pillows that Marylynn Piotrowski had spread out as seating on the lawn. 2. After the movie, we continued the fun on the beach, roasting marshmallows and listening to music. 3, 4. Mary Giuliani's mini fish tacos, served with a shot of beer. 5. Matt Murphy Event Lighting created a whimsical ambience with these lanterns hung on bamboo branches. 6. Moët & Chandon debuted their latest bubbly, Ice Impérial, the first-ever champagne made to be served over ice. I added some fresh local peaches and a sprig of fresh mint. 7. Dior Beauty sent a makeup artist to help me achieve my bad-girl Sandra Dee look, using Dior Addict Ultra-Gloss in Negligee Pink. 8. After the sing-along, we just weren't ready to call it a night, so everyone headed down to the beach for a good old-fashioned bonfire. 9. The best costume of the night went to Niki Beel. 10. Delfina Blaquier and Nacho Figueras went for a preppy look. 11. Me as bad-girl Sandy pouring drinks. 12. The Pink Ladies were on the prowl. 13. I wonder what these guys lettered in at Rydell High? 14. Olivia Newton-John in Grease
